What's modern in the air this month, edited by Nathalie Wilson

1 Take heart in the idea that Christmas jumpers of old may have found a stylish new life – in the form of 'Faroe' (right; £80 per m; 14 colourways), made of recycled jerseys. Also repurposed is 'Tetric' (£70 per m; five colourways). Supplier Frame and Cover is committed to sustainability. Ring 020 3637 2628, or visit frameandcover.com.

2 Modern nomads who need to stay connected wherever they are must wait until January to get their mitts on Nolii's debut tech-accessories collection. The neutral, pastel or Day-Glo gadgets include the 'Bundle' cable, which can be neatly tied up or secured to a work surface using a rest (from £25). The 'Stack' power pack charges any device without an electricity supply (£125). Visit nolii.co.uk.

3 Turn the clock back to the postwar design scene in America and you'll find the polymath George Nelson in the thick of it. His cherry-wood 'Fan' timepiece (£295) has been reissued by Vitra. Ring 020 7608 6200, or visit vitra.com.

4 Following in founder Andrée Putman's footsteps, Ecart continues to grow its range of reissued products by early 20th-century design greats. Among the fruit of its latest labours is Jean-Michel Frank's 1932 'Cube' armchair. Yours for the picking from £8,700 approx. Ring 00 33 1 43 54 43 94, or visit ecart.paris.

5 Recycling still sweeps all before it in contemporary design. These retro 'Veeg' brushes (from £55 approx each) are easy on the eye, handcrafted from old bicycle frames to Dick van Hoff's design for the Dutch skills-development enterprise Social Label. Visit sociallabel.nl.
